Danny Simmons' disRUPT: Newark

Curated by Noah Kane-Small

Opening Reception

Thursday, October 12th, 2017 9PM-1AM

Fownders Gallery

11 Wellington Way, Newark, NJ

Sponsored by Jerry's Vodka, Munchies by Antonio and Novartis

RSVP Required: <https://newarkarts.org/opendoors/spotlight-events/>

Danny Simmons' disRUPT: Newark, curated by Noah Kane-Small, is inspired by the intersection of tech / art / social. Simmons is a poet and visual artist whose works have been exhibited in Brooklyn Academy of Music, Brooklyn Museum, Schomburg Center for Black Culture, The Smithsonian, the United Nations, and the African American Museum of Philadelphia. He is the elder brother of "Rev. Run" Simmons (RUN DMC) and hip-hop mogul/philanthropist Russell Simmons. Danny co-produced the Tony-winning Broadway show Def Poetry Jam and the Rush Philanthropic Arts Foundation. He is a scholarly consultant for the Smithsonian National Museum of African American History and Culture. Closing November 3rd.

i found god in myself: a celebration of Dr. Ntozake Shange's for colored girls

Curated by Souleo

Thursday, October 12th – Saturday, November 18th, 2017

Opening Reception:

Saturday, October 14th, 2017 6PM-9PM

City Without Walls, 6 Crawford Street, Newark, NJ

Presented by Newark Arts and sponsored by Mocha Lounge

RSVP Required: <https://newarkarts.org/opendoors/spotlight-events/>

Dr. Ntozake Shange's famous choreopoem and Broadway show, for colored girls who have considered suicide/when the rainbow is enuf, will be the inspiration for curator Peter (Souleo) Wright's exhibition. This show debuted in 2014 at the Schomburg Center for Research in Black Culture, Long Gallery Harlem and La Maison d'Art. Through 10 commissioned artworks by artists including Kimberly Mayhorn, Dianne Smith, Margaret Rose Vendryes and Amber Robles-Gordon the exhibition is a tribute to the Broadway play. Like the poem, their artworks reflect women of color and issues of sexuality, race, sisterhood, violence and self-love. Dr. Shange will appear at the Saturday opening. Closing November 18th.

SOUND+BOMBING

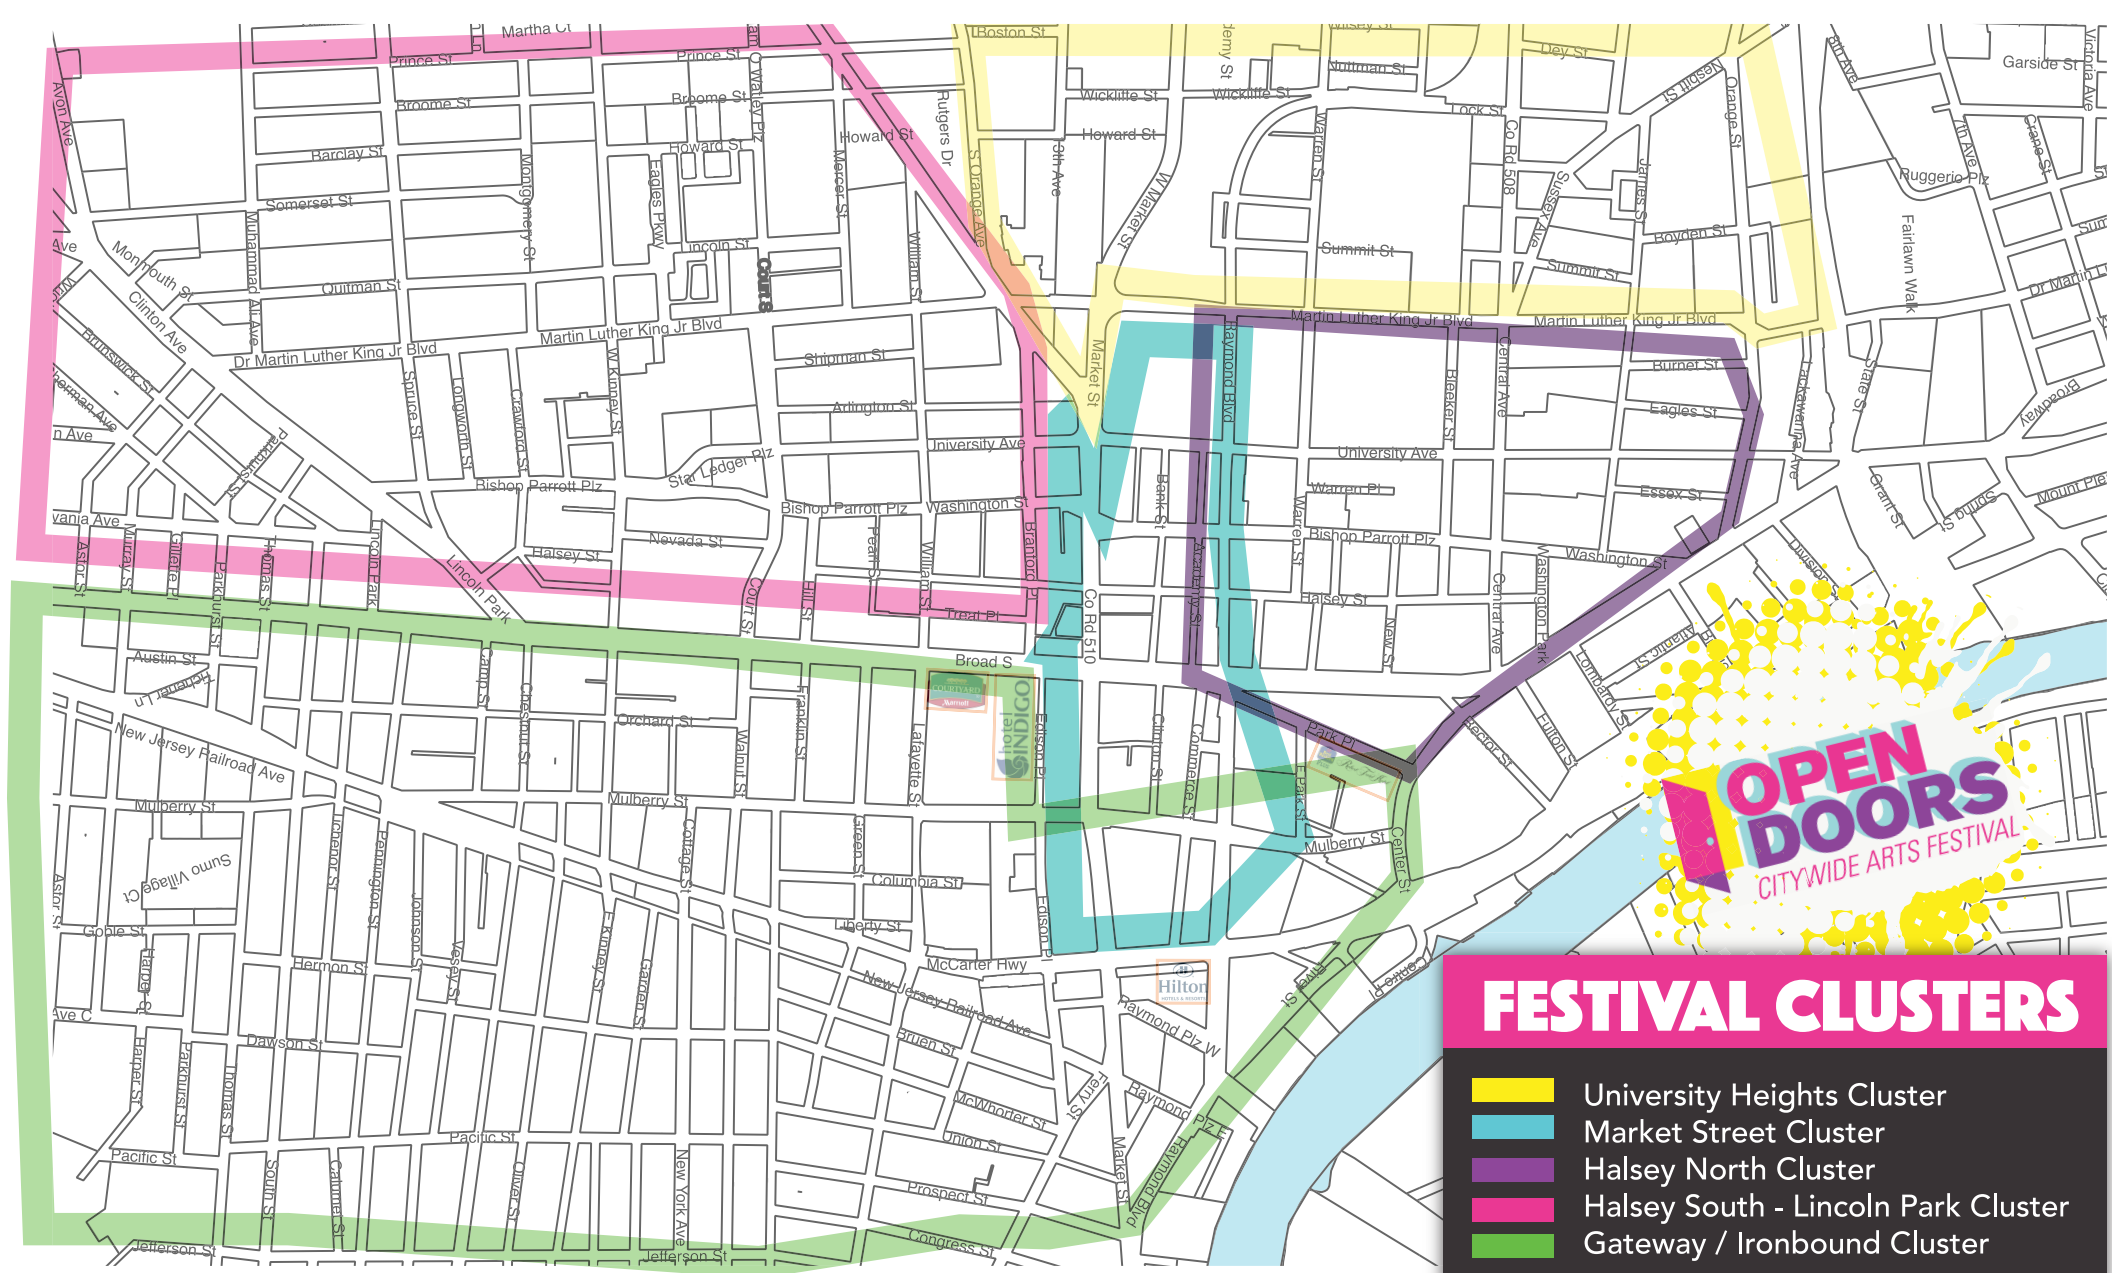

Saturday, October 14th, 2017 12PM-5PM

This event is where art meets skate culture. In homage to Shorty's, the former clandestine skater-created, owned and operated skatepark, the first annual Open Doors Sound+Bombing will raise awareness of the need for a permanent skate park in Newark, where street art flourish unfettered, and appreciated. Hosted in partnership with Lincoln Park Coast Cultural District and Newark Riverfront Revival. The secret location will be announced to those who RSVP. #SaveShortys
